

AT THE THEATERS

COLUMBIA. Tonight and Saturday: A delightful love story combined with an exciting theft of a jeweled garter bearing the inscription "Evelyn to Him Who Will Think", forms the theme of a most interesting story in "My Lady's Garter", which will be shown at the Columbia Theater tonight and tomorrow.

In addition, there will be a Pathé News and a Mutt and Jeff comedy.

HALL. Tonight and Saturday: John Emerson and Anita Loos, the "King and Queen of movie satire," have completed what is probably their most daring adaptation in "In Search of a Sinner," which will appear at the Hall Theater tonight and tomorrow. Miss Constance Talmadge, the brilliant star, has the leading role in this, her newest attraction.

The plot deals with Georgianna Chadwick, the young wife of Henry Chadwick, who was "the best man who ever lived." Henry was too good to live. After the funeral, Georgianna sets out to find and capture her ideal—a perfectly wild man. There is a flirtation in Central Park, and Georgianna is sure she has found a wicked male. Then she learns that he is an officer in "The Purty League." Right here the fun starts.

WEATHER MAN HELPS PEOPLE OF ALL SORTS

Numerous Vocations Affected by Reports and Forecasts of Important U. S. Bureau.

COVER WHOLE COUNTRY Newspapers, Telegraphs and Mails Are Used to Get Information to Nation's Residents.

Do you think it will rain today? Will tomorrow be a pretty day for our picnic? How shall I plan my farm work for next week?

George Reeder of the U. S. Weather Bureau here answers questions like these every day, frequently before they have been asked.

Mr. Reeder finds an explanation for this universal interest in the weather by observation from his work as meteorologist. He says the weather reports are of vital interest to all engaged in production or transportation. The climatic surveys now issued show the relation of climates to health.

EVERYONE READS FORECASTS.

Practically every daily newspaper in the United States gives some space to weather forecasts each day. Three and a half million rural telephone subscribers get daily weather forecasts through the exchanges. The distribution of reports from forecast centers is effected by telegraph to over 2,500 principal points. There they are printed and mailed out.

Storm and flood warnings for mariners, frost forecasts for fruit growers, prediction of the velocities and directions of air currents for the benefit of aviators, for everybody—these are some of the public services rendered by the weather man.

The U. S. Weather Bureau maintains a service of collecting and issuing reports on the condition of main state roads. The bureau issues flood warnings and forecasts of river stages, primarily for the protection of life and property, but also for the study of the relation between rainfall and run-off.

Weather reports are far more extensive than a mere statement, "fair and warmer tomorrow." A monthly bulletin called "Climatological Data" is sent to thousands of business men and subscribers over the world. In the Missouri section of this bulletin, March, 1920, can be found the wind velocity for the two days last spring when the dome of Academic Hall was damaged and other property in Columbia was destroyed. Each monthly issue of "Climatological Data" contains detailed information for the locality in which it is published, and a general report for the whole nation.

AID TO SHIPPERS "Not only must the forecaster have an intimate knowledge of the needs of his district," says Mr. Reeder, "but the recipient must be skillful in utilizing the advice. For example, the subject of transportation of perishable food products vitally affects the public, yet it is one about which people are only slightly informed.

To all transportation interests, the forecaster must have a fair comprehension of effects of temperature, humidity and ventilation on all sorts of commodities which are packed in various ways and transported or stored under a wide range of conditions.

To serve the farmer he must know his needs and what interests are most important as the season progresses. During haying season, for example, he extends the period of the forecast whenever possible to three or four days so that the farmer may hasten if necessary to save his crop. He must give forecasts that will warn farmers to protect their stock against severe storms, cold winds and extreme temperatures.

MISS GREENE TALKS ON INDIA Y. W. C. A. Members Hear Lecture by Missionary.

The Y. W. C. A. had five foreign visitors at the weekly meeting yesterday. They were from India and they listened with perhaps greater appreciation than any of the rest of the audience to the talk given by Miss Lily Dexter Greene, for twenty-six years a missionary to India. Miss Greene is on a furlough and will soon return to her work. The four visitors were M. L. Patel, P. L. Patel, M. K. Patel, N. R. Merchant and C. G. Kulkarni, students in the University. An appreciative laugh came from each as the speaker gave native phrases.

"India is the most fascinating country in the world," Miss Greene said. "The scenery is wonderful but with 225 persons to an acre of land, the people are of greatest interest. Schools of higher education have recently been established for girls and with the enlightenment of the women a feeling of nationalism is spreading over the country."

The association voted unanimously to adopt the membership plan decided upon at the national convention at Cleveland and the future members will only be asked to pledge themselves as believers in the principles of Christ, while hitherto they had to be members of some orthodox, evangelical church. All old members of the Y. W. C. A. must sign a new pledge card.

A new president will be elected at the next meeting to succeed Catherine Hillix, whose illness will prevent her serving in that capacity.

Miss Camille Jacobs played a violin solo.
